Double Category Winner!

The Wooden Bowl - El bol de madera

International Book Awards - Award Winning Finalist

Two Categories: Parenting/Family and Children's Picture Book

2010 International Book Awards, known for honoring knowledge, creativity, wisdom, and global cooperation through the written word, have recognized The Wooden Bowl – El bol de madera, by Ramona Moreno Winner, as a finalist in two book categories: Children's Picture Book, and Parenting/Family book categories.

JPX Media announced the winners and finalists of the 2010 International Book Awards (IBA) on May 18, 2010. Over 300 winners and finalists were announced in over 140 categories covering print and audio books. Awards were presented for titles published in 2008, 2009 and 2010. Jeff Keen, President and CEO of JPX Media, said this year's contest yielded a large number of entries, which were then narrowed down to over 300 winners and finalists from around the world.

When grandfather comes to live with Diego and his family, Diego is ecstatic; he finds many similarities between himself and his grandfather. Caring for an elderly parent becomes stressful for the adults and they begin exhibiting unkind behavior towards grandfather.

Diego teaches his parents a lesson on how to treat his aging grandfather. The way the parents treat the grandfather now, is how Diego will be treating them when they become elderly and in need of care. This bilingual story carries a message on respect for all generations.

“I am hoping to influence social change with this little book. The discussion that can insue from reading this book will promote respect for the young and elderly alike,” says Mrs. Winner.

Author, Ramona Moreno Winner, lives with her husband and sons in Goleta, CA. Her other award winning titles are Lucas and His Loco Beans and Freaky Foods From Around the World.
